Index of Chapters in "Miniature Camera Work"

CHAPTER 1—The Passing Scene Robert Disrael
A documentary presentation of our times in relation to the photographer and to his camera.

CHAPTER 2—Formal and Informal Portraiture
Manuel Komroff
A vivid description of an author's technique when photographing some of his interesting friends.

CHAPTER 3—Photo-Journalism Willard D. Morgan
An editor views the mechanics and the mental approach to "photographic reporting" which result in acceptable picture stories.

CHAPTER 4—"Eyes That See" an interview with Alfred Eisenstaedt
A candid presentation of the background and experiences of a cameraman, and his interpretation of "photo-reporting."

CHAPTER 5—The Expanding Photographic Universe
Ansel Adams
A new conception of photography as a form of expression.

CHAPTER 6—Sport and Action Photography
John A. Davis
A director of athletic education in an eastern college teaches "good form" athletically and photographically speaking.

CHAPTER 7—Color Photography Harris B. Tuttle
A lucid and comprehensive explanation of simple practice of Kodachrome Photography by one who lives by it.

BRILLIANTLY ILLUSTRATED WITH 20 COLOR PLATES

CHAPTER 8—Composition in Photography Leo Katz
An amazingly interesting and new approach to a subject which is most important—but least understood.

CHAPTER 9—Photography of Children and Pets
Douglas Haskell
A progressive children's camp director explains how he "gets them" . . . gracefully!

CHAPTER 10—Photomontage Barbara Morgan
A most revealing and informative presentation of a rich field, comparatively new and unexplored by the miniature camera.

CHAPTER 11—News Photography Alan Fisher
What to do, when one must (and does) "Get that picture!"

CHAPTER 12—Photography of After-Dark Entertainment
Leo Pavelle
Told by the "past master" of this, most fascinating, ever-changing form of miniature camera photography.

CHAPTER 13—Surrealism for the Photographer
Lewis Jacobs
A new trend significantly presented and rendered thoroughly accessible.

CHAPTER 14—The Miniature Camera Club
Augustus Wolfman
How to establish, organize and run this fundamental activity of miniature camera photography.

CHAPTER 15—Photographic Facts and Data
Henry M. Lester
Essential information tabulated and presented simply for guidance and ready reference.

A Quotation from "Miniature Camera Work"

"Children when taken off guard produce the most unexpected patterns. They seem to record themselves on the film all sprawling and gangling. Some of these sprawling and gangling pictures which have come my own way are herewith reproduced. They do not seem to run at all to the familiar type that shows one or two children fishing (ragged pants and big straw hat) or on the beach (shovels and pails). In fact some of these sprawling and gangling pictures do not at first glance convey much aesthetic pleasure; they run counter to adult notions of smooth easy order. I confess that these knobby pictures have come to fascinate me more than the smoothies. In the conflict between the truthfulness of childlike angles and our aesthetic demand for well-proportioned shapes and spaces, perhaps aesthetics will have to do some yielding in the end: or rather, our aesthetic perceptions will have to expand in order to admit this new kingdom."

THE GILMER BINDER, 228 Chancellor St., Philadelphia, Pa.

BY THE GREATEST PHOTOGRAPHIC AUTHOR AND ARTIST OF TODAY

WILLIAM MORTENSEN

PRINT FINISHING

deals with a critical but neglected stage of print making. It takes the print from the wash-water to the salon wall. For the first time in his books, Mr. Mortensen describes his amazing method for print control, the Abrasion-Tone Process. At last, the photographer is enabled to alter or eliminate blemishes without resorting to negative retouching.....

$2.50

will simplify your lighting problems in two important ways: Simplified in execution, the author explains clearly and simply just how his famous lightings are made. Simplified by low costs, for only two inexpensive lighting units are used and these are well within the reach of the most modest purse. Profusely illustrated with diagrams giving exact measurements for lighting set-ups.....

$2.00

THE COMMAND TO LOOK

A Formula for Picture Success, in which the master pictorialist sheds new light on the art of picture making. He presents a revolutionary approach to the secret of making effective pictures and a startling introduction to the problems of composition, based on a single, workable formula. 55 illustrations of Mortensen's best work, with a cover in full color. Beautifully bound in white plastic.....

$2.00

PROJECTION CONTROL

is concerned primarily with describing the four methods the author uses to control the image during projection: framing; local printing and "dodging in"; alteration or distortion; and combination printing and montage. They enable the photographer to greatly enhance the pictorial effectiveness of his pictures. Also invaluable sections on equipment, exposure and developing technique.....

$1.75

MONSTERS & MADONNAS

One of the most unusual photographic books ever published . . . this book has two purposes. First, it presents 20 beautiful photogravure reproductions of Mortensen's work, 9x12 inches in size, prepared so that they may be easily removed for framing without damaging the book. Secondly, accompanying each picture is a complete exposition of the methods used in producing the print and the artistic principles involved.....

$4.00

THE MODEL

A Book on the Problems of Posing. A thoroughly complete treatise on the posing and directing of models. The problems connected with the posing of every part of the figure are exhaustively studied and finally brought together for the completed pose. Arrangement of the hair and of clothes are also thoroughly studied. 272 pages and 268 especially prepared illustrations.....
